1920 CITY VEHICLE LICENSE TAGS HERE

559 CITY LICENSES WERE ISSUED LAST YEAR.

STREETS BEING CLEARED

Obstructions to Public Ways Removed in Anticipation of New Ordinance Effective Feb. 18.

The new vehicle license tags have been received by Mayor Garrett and are now at the city hall ready to be taken out. The 1920 licenses were due on February first but were not received at the city headquarters until today.

Last year 559 city vehicle licenses were issued. Of this number 453 were auto and motor licenses and 106 for horse teams. The number this year will be greatly in excess of last year's total.

A meeting of the city commissioners set for last night to consider revision of some of the city ordinances relating to the up keep of parkways and streets was not called on account of the illness of Commissioner C. F. Remus, who has been sick with influenza for the past week. These matters will probably be held over until the next regular meeting of the council in March. One of the most important matters to be discussed was the parking of autos on the city streets and the length of time cars may be left standing in front of business houses or on the principal streets.

In many places where there were obstructions on the city sidewalks in the way of goods displayed or unsightly collections of rubbish in streets or alleys, the property owners have anticipated an enforcement of the new ordinance clearing the street which goes into effect Friday, by moving the collections removed and the right of way cleared. This ordinance governing the placing of obstructions on streets, alleys or public places was drafted at a meeting of the mayor and commissioners held Feb. 3, to go into effect within ten days from the time of its adoption by the city council.

WINSHIP WRITES ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

SAYS NODAWAY LEADS WORLD IN RURAL SCHOOL VITALIZATION

TELLS OF GOOD WORK

A South American Educator Said the Only Real Education he had Seen was in Nodaway County.

The Nodaway County rural schools where vitalized agriculture is taught, received a great deal of advertising and quite a boost from A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, which is published at Boston, Mass., in the issue of January 29. As a result of the article County Superintendent Bert Cooper has received a number of letters from all over the country wanting information about the plan here.

The article from Mr. Winship's paper follows:

Nodaway County, Missouri, probably leads the world in rural school vitalization. Anyway we suggest right here that you write to Bert Cooper, county superintendent, Maryville, Mo., enclosing a two-cent postage stamp, and ask for his Rural School Bulletins.

We had been in Nodaway county before, had heard Cooper talk Nodaway county all over South Dakota, and had read his Nodaway County Bulletins, so we thouught we were prepared for seeing what we were to see, but literally "the half had not been told" and we were no more prepared for it than as though we had not been there last June, had not heard Bert Cooper, had not read his illustrated bulletin, and we can write nothing that will mean anything to any teacher or educator whose educational arteries are atrophied. They would go there themselves and not see or hear anything they did not want to see and hear.

We write knowing full well that it is casting information before some folks who rather see children dry up and blow away than to have success that is not "standardized."

No one knows better than I that it is all wrong, dead wrong, but nevertheless it is the truth that we saw one of the best schools we ever saw with only four pupils, four girls, one ten and three seven. It was a real school. The pupils were as keen as a Damascus blade, learned several times as much as city children learn in the same time; know more of the community as a laboratory than any seven-year-old girls whom we have seen in a city school; think clearly and virilely on all the things they study; are brainy as well as handy.

It was a bitter cold day with the mercury way below zero. Our hotel had no heat, we had not fared sumptuously for several days, and we were inclined to say something, which we refrained from doing, when Bert Cooper told Mrs. Mustain and me that we would have luncheon at a rural school, a luncheon prepared by the pupils. Fortunately he did not tell us that it was a genuine country school with only four pupils, four girls, one ten and three seven. Had he told us that I would never have gone, for I had a below zero appetite.

This, in the truth, the undilated truth. I had few meals on that trip to compare with that luncheon. The ten-year-old miss had prepared the luncheon; one of the seven-year-olds set the table in the latest approved style; another provided wash basin and towels that we might be appropriately clean before going to the table; and the other seven-year-old presided at the table with matronly dignity.

It was a course luncheon. The soup was as delicious a cream of potato as I ever tasted; the meat was Jack rabbit, the first that I have ever had cooked so as to take the wild flavor out of it and leave young-chicken-meat delicacy. The bread was brought from home, but everything else to the pudding was prepared at the school by the girls, and they had written on the board the various calories we were feasting upon appropriately.

Later the teacher wrote to Superintendent Cooper that the girls paid Mrs. Mustain and myself a real childish compliment, saying, "They did everything just right, didn't they?"

At another school, an adequately large rural school, we found a young woman teaching her first school, but she had had a week in Professor Holden's Short Course "Vitalizing Education by Rotation" and she had no difficulty in having a school in which the community was the laboratory and all the children were masters of themselves and did everything in masterful

RAIL TROUBLES NEARING CRISIS

PALMER PREPARED TO ACT

Washington, Feb. 11.—The government forces are being mobilized today to prevent the nation wide rail road strike. Director General Hines was to give answer to the ultimatum of the railroad workers presented yesterday demanding increased wages. Hines also met with a committee of the brotherhood of the maintenance of way employees to discuss the strike set for February 17.

Attorney General Palmer is preparing to act under the Lever law to prevent the strike by injuction if necessary.

Detroit, Feb. 11.—Allen Barker, grand president of the brotherhood of maintenance of way employees declared today the organization "would pay no attention" to any injunction issued by any federal judge to prevent the strike of 300,000 of his followers in February 17.

"Governments when it suits their purposes follows the Lever act", declared Barker. "It tells us the war is over, the Lever act does not apply. Also when it suits their purposes that the war is not over, the Lever act is effective. No injunction will deter us. The strike order is issued and cannot be recalled."

Washington, Feb. 11.—Railroad wage increases demanded by the brotherhood American Federation of Labor for 2 million railway workers of the country are not to be granted by the railroad administration.

The demands of the organizations which have been pending for a year are to be denied by Director General Hines.

Denial of the increases, it was said, will be based upon the ground of economic impossibility, that no increase railroad wages further would necessitate such a large increase in railroad rates, already incommensurate with wage increases granted by the railroad administration under Mr. McAdoo that the cost of living would immediately take another leap an dthe "vicious circle" of mounting wages and costs would be kept whirling along.

It also transpired that Director General Hines is considering legal steps against threatened railroad strikes. It is possible that an injunction may be applied for before the union of maintenance of way employees and shop laborers puts its strike into effect next Saturday.

WRITES ABOUT SCHOOLS

ways. We could write columns appreciatively on what we saw and heard in this school. It was all so unbelievable that it would read like fiction. It is merely the natural result of the great new thought in education.

In another school we found a teacher of some experience who had never had a "Short Course," but earnestly protested that she knew she could do it after what she had heard of it and saw of it in the Holden bulletins. She was doing a mighty fine piece of work. She goes in town, Maryville, every Saturday and attends Superintendent Rogers' conference on Vitalized Agriculture.

We could write columns on the excellent work we saw in her school. Indeed, that is true of all the work we saw in the rural schools of Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma in which the community is the school laboratory and the dictionary, the encyclopedia and bulletins from the Federal Department of Agriculture, the state department and the International Harvester Company play a vitalizing part.

We do not wonder that a South American minister of education, who had spent months visiting schools in New England, in the Middle and Western States, went from Chicago to Nodaway county and back to Chicago, just to spend a week in those schools, and said that the only real things in education he had seen in the United States he saw in Nodaway county.

The rural schools visited by Mr. Winship and Mrs. Mustain were:

Martha Washington, taught by Miss Eula Snowberger; Bell Grove, Miss Hester Deneen; Garrett, Miss Mary Watson; Lasher, Miss Grace Fisher; Olwell, Miss Nellie Halasey; Elm Grove, Miss Christie Waldeier; Union, Miss Opal Berkenbolz.

The rural school where Dr. Winship and Mrs. Mustain took luncheon was the Olwell school, taught by Miss Nellie Halasey. The ten-year-old miss who prepared the luncheon was Elsie Rogers. The three little seven-year-old girls were Netta May Rogers, Dorothy Dalby, and Pauline Clesper.

The Lasher school is the other school which is taught by Miss Grace Fisher, who had never had a short course.

Columbus Circle, according to most reliable statistics, is New York's busiest spot. An average of 39,210 persons pass there every twelve hours.

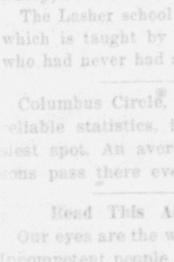
A Missouri Woman's Experience



Vera Cruz, Mo.:—"I was in poor health last fall and was not able to do all my work; I had a dull headache all the time, and my memory was poor. I also had a hurting in my back and one of my legs would take spells of hurting and would feel numb, or dead. I could not sleep good at night—did not eat much and my nerves were in bad shape, so I decided to write to Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., which I did. He said for me to take the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also some 'Pleasant Pellets' (all of which I got at the drug store) and I soon began to get better. All these symptoms have left me and I feel like a different woman. Am able to do all my work and tend my garden."—MRS. MARTHA JEFFERSON, Box 4.

St. Joseph, Mo.:—"I became all run-down in health due to woman's weakness. I was weak, nervous and got very thin. I doctored and took different medicines for this condition but did not get any relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it soon restored me to health and strength. I was so completely cured of this condition that it has never given me any trouble since.

FOREIGN TRADE INCREASE PREDICTED

COMMERCE SECRETARY THINKS EUROPE WILL BUY HEAVILY

16 BILLION IN 5 YEARS

Washington.— Europe, always Uncle Sam's best customer, taking considerably more than one half of our exports, will draw upon us heavies' in the next few years for raw materials and foodstuffs. Secretary of Commerce Alexander said today, discussing the foreign trade outlook.

Secretary Alexander believes that if present conditions of depreciated exchange rates for our dollar continue for any length of time—which probably will happen until the trade balance is more nearly normal—Europe's purchases from American dealers may be restricted to those necessities which cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The warning is held out by the Commerce Director, however, that American business interests should not permit themselves to be unmindful of the gigantic strides expected to be made by the Europeans in competation with us as soon as they are on their feet and have brought their manufacturing output up again to normal.

"As soon as the highly developed manufacturing countries— England, France, Belgium and possibly Germany —are rain able to produce manufactured goods for export they may be in a position to underbid us, so far as European and adjacent countries are concerned," Mr. Alexander said.

One of the most encouraging features of America's export trade, in Secretary Alexander's opinion, is the continued expension in recent years of our trade with South American, Far Eastern and other countries whose manufacturing interests are not yet highly developed.

"Our promising possibilities for extending our export trade would seem to lie in this direction," Mr. Alexander stated. "Exchange of our manufactures for their raw materials and tropical food products should result in lasting and profitable trade.

"It is evident that the increased shipments to Europe of raw materials and foodstuffs are not due to superior salesmanship or special inducements in competition with other exporting countries, but are a result of the strong demand in Europe for commodities indispensable for reconstruction work.

"Europe knows these goods are obtainable in sufficient quantities only in America and are brought here with the price a secondary consideration, especially if satisfactory credit terms are made.

"So far expansion of our exports to Europe has been mostly with neutral and allied countries. Their need of supplies is fully as pressing as in the central countries, but owing to unsettled internal conditions it has taken longer to arrange for re-establishment of trade connections.

As soon as the United States cuttin a state of peace with Germany and other central countries with which we were at war it was Secretary Alexander's prediction that trade with those countries will begin to jump forward.

Trade with the central countries not only will expand, Secretary Alexander says, but he looks for this trade to some extent to take the place of goods now shipped to neutral and allied countries, when their urgent need shall have been supplied.

Secretary Alexander said he confidently expected exports would have a tendency to continue for some time near their present high level, notwithstanding adverse exchange rates, if private firms can find the means of carrying long time credits.

Secretary Alexander is not an alarmists over the prospect of mounting imports hurting our trade situation.

"Larger imports," said he, "especially so far as they tend to relieve the foreign exchange situation, have a beneficial effect upon our foreign trade as a whole. Analysis of the character of goods forming this increase shows that practically the entire gain is in the imports of foodstuffs and crude materials."

Before the war our favorable trade balance with Europe on the merchandise account approximated $500,000,000 a year, to a great extent offset by the invisible balance of trade of interest, ocean freight, tourist, immigrant and other remittances.

The American merchandise trade balance with Europe in the last five years has mounted to the stupendous total of $10,000,000,000. About $10,000,000,000 of this is covered by allied government obligations, while the balance of $6,000,000,000, apparently is being financed on private accounts.

SURE RELIEF FROM ITCHING SKIN DISEASES

Will Never Come From Salves, Ointments, or Other Local Treatment.

A million gallons of lotions, ointments, salves or other forms of local treatment will not give any real permanent relief from skin diseases. Get this fact firmly in your mind, and there is hope for you.

If you have ever been afflicted with eczema, tetter, boils, eruptions, or other similar skin irritations you can appreciate the real terrifying discomfort that comes from these disorders. And what you are looking for is not merely temporary, palliative relief that may cause the terrible burning and itching to abate for awhile, but real genuine relief that shakes off the shackles of the disease, and restores the skin to its former healthy condition.

Follow the teachings of science, and you will learn that the skin is fed by the blood, and naturally, then, the condition of your skin will depend upon the condition of your blood. If the blood becomes infested with millions of tiny disease germs that attack the skin, then the fiery irritation and intense itching will remain with you until these germs are attacked at their source and removed from the blood.

Genuine relief, therefore, can only be expected from a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble, and strikes at its cause Such a remedy is S. S. S., the reliable old blood purifier that kills the germs of disease, and sends a new supply of rich red blood coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin disorders, and it can be relied upon to cleanse the blood thoroughly of the germs which cause these complaints. S. S. S. is also a splendid tonic and system-builder, and it builds up and adds new vigor to the whole system.

Go to your drug store and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and begin the right treatment for skin diseases. Then if you feel that your case requires special medical advice, you can obtain same without cost, by writing to Chief Medical Adviser, 13 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Community Interests

No man can live by his own effort—he depends upon the work of others for most of his necessities.

Therefore community interests are the interests of every man, every woman and every business institution in the community.

The chief community interest in Nodaway County is farm production—every man in the county should be interested in it no matter what his business is.

The Farmers Trust Company is glad to be a part in every interest of the community and to give every possible effort for the advancement of those interests. It believes that it can be of the greatest usefulness to the community by serving the individuals, and to that end it strives to live up to its slogan—The Bank of Personal Service.

SEEDS EXPENSIVE SHOULD BE TESTED

TEST MAY PROTECT CROP

This One Factor of Crop Production May be Controlled by Farmer

Red clover seed is selling at approximately 50 cents a pound. At that price a farmer can not afford to sow as clover seed anything that is not clover seed. Half a dollar a pound for weed seed, chaff, and dirt is too high a price to pay for the privilege of being careless—particularly as seed testing is comparatively an easy and wholly an expensive operation.

There is but one factor in crop production over which the farmer has absolute control. Sunshine and moisture are matters that are wholly beyond his power of inflence. Measurably, he can control culture, but too much rain or too long a drought at a critical time may place even that beyond his power. But, no matter what happens, the farmer can be sure that he is planting good seed—the kind of seed that, given a fair chance, will produce a full crop. He can not aford to handi cap himself at the outset by planting adulterated or dead seed—the kind of seed that can not make a full crop no motter how favorable conditions may be.

The sale of seeds, in many states, is regulated by law the seller being required to make certain statements as to quality, but the law is not applicable to seeds that go into interstate commerce. In order to meet this difficulty so far as possible, the Secretary of Agriculture, in 1917, asked representatives of the seed trade to meet in Washington and secured the consent of most of them to a suggestion that seed men label all farm seeds solds in lots of 10 pounds or more, the label to show percentage of pure seed, percentage of germination, and date of germination test. In some cases the agreement was not lived up to, but the matter has again been called to the attention of seed men and many of them have again announced that they will fully label all farm seed they sell. P ractically all large seed they sell.

Practically all large seed houses now have facilities for testing the qua lity of all lots of seeds that they buy and sell. They have, therefore, the in formation that the farmer needs, and he should insist on being given this information when he buys seeds. Few farmers are willing to buy low grade seed, containing much chaf, dirt, weed seeds, and dead seeds— if they know how poor it is. The dealer, however, almost invariably makes his largest profit on the lowest grade of seed he sells and is not always willing to put on a truthful label. The farmer's protection lies in buying only labeled seeds.

The farmer, however, may do a great deal toward protecting himself by testing seeds at home. "Testing seed in the home and the rural school,' published by the United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 426, discusses the subject in detail. It will be furnished free on request.

All kinds of farm seeds may be subjected to one kind of test or another, but the seeds of the crops in most gen eral use and which it is especially desirable to have tested are the true clovers, such as red, alsike, and crimson; alalfa; such grasses as timothy, orchard grass, fescue grass, blue grass, broom grass, and the millets, cereals, rape, flax, vetch and corn. Much of the seed of these crops, except cereals and corn, is imported, and widely variable grades are on the market. Just now a greal deal of clover seed is being imported from Italy, and specialists believe that much of t is poorly adapted to American conditions. The prevalence of foreign-grown seed in the market is probably not generally recognized, but it is one of the important elements in making testing necessary.

Woman Declines to Talk.

A woman who doesn't like to talk. Thus might Mrs. Jean Bennett, the first woman presidential campaign manager ever to be appointed, be characterized. Mrs. Bennett, who has opened a "listening post" in Chicago for Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts, and will make Chicago her headquarters until after the convention, dislikes interviews.

"I'm going to run my business just as a man would run it," she announced. "And I don't want a lot of personal publicity the first thing. I prefer to work quietly."

Mrs. Bennett's "quiet work" is sizing up the political situation in the surrounding states; finding out the favorite sons and Governor Coolidge's standing in this part of the country.

After much questioning as to Governor Coolidge's chances as she saw them, she announced that of course he would carry Massachusetts with a full delegation. Then she settled down to her please don't ask me any more questions attitude. However, it was discovered that she was interested in the situation in Minnesota, in whether or not Senator Kellogg would be a favorite son and in what Governor Allen of Kansas is doing.

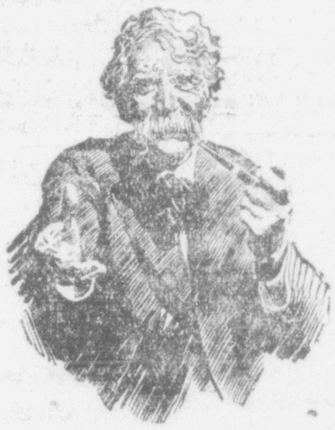
The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.



Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

MEMORIES OF LINCOLN'S DAY

Told by One Who Was Acquainted With the Great Emancipator and His Opponent, Douglas.

MRS. JOHN LYMAN CHILD, who is eighty-two years old, knew Lincoln personally, heard Lincoln and Douglas debate, has a store of interesting incidents connected with her father-in-law, an ardent Abolitionist, as well as tales of her father, who served as adjutant-general of Illinois.

Mrs. Child's maiden name was Mary Ellen Anderson. She was born and reared near Springfield, lived in that locality for eighty years, and now resides in Chicago.

"Yes, I remember when Springfield was nothing but a mud-hole, when the horses were driven to the court house, unhitched, tied to the back of the wagon and fed there. I lived on a farm not far from town; we knew the people in town and went in to the political meetings. In those days, you know, two would talk together, each trying to get voters for his side. I heard Lincoln and Douglas stump. Folks said that Douglas was the smartest man but that Lincoln was the shrewdest. Once I heard Douglas say to Lincoln: 'You, sir, used to sell whisky!'*

"When Lincoln got up, this was his answer to that: 'Yes, I did. And while I offer no apology in one way, with Douglas, that's another; you did the drinking.'

"Douglas was a drinker. They said he made the best speeches when he was under the influence. The day my father introduced him to a little boy who was for Douglas, though the boy's father was strong on the other side, I know he had been drinking.

"This boy's father, Stephen Child—the boy had the same name—was known all around as an abolitionist. The boy, only ten years old, for some reason was not on that side. Once the father while at work in the field saw his team being driven by little Stephen out to the road as fast as they could go. He hollered for the boy to bring the horses back but he paid no attention. After awhile Mr. Child saw a gang of boys drive back to the house. They had a pole in their wagon. They took this out and pretty soon began trying to raise it, for a flag-pole, in front of the house. Mr. Child (by the way, he later became my father-in-law) went over and offered to help, although it was a hickory pole. But little Stephen said, 'No, this is a Democrat pole and no Abolitionist shall touch it.'

"Little Stephen had two cats that he called Douglas and Lincoln. He took fine care of Douglas but he used to beat Lincoln unmercifully. That was a long time ago, but he is still living and still remembers his cats.

"My father was a Democrat. We lived neighbor to the Childs, and one day father took little Stephen to a meeting where Douglas spoke. After the meeting father had the boy shake hands with Douglas, and he introduced him as a 'ten-year-old Democrat son of an Abolitionist.'

"My father-in-law was an awful strong Abolitionist. He sheltered colored people and helped show them the way north. He had a horse named Pomp. They said he would put a colored runaway on the horse, send it off and be pretty sure it would do what was expected of it; would run along steadily, then kick up its heels and throw off its load right at the door of another Abolitionist.

"My father-in-law used to hide the runaways in his cellar, which had no outside door, just a trap-door in the house. Once he had a lot of them there and searchers came along, suspecting him. Mr. Child told them they were welcome to search. They looked all around, but not in the right place. That night he loaded the colored people in the bottom of the wagon, piled on top bags of hay and started out for Salt Creek. On the trip at the side of the road he met a man who asked for a ride. Mr. Child raised his whip and told him to get out of the way, that he didn't want any one to ride and hurt his load. He got the people safely to Salt Creek, there in Logan county, then showed them the way north.

"Yes, I knew Lincoln. I knew Mary Todd, too, slightly. She was haughty. After their marriage it hurt her that

Mrs. John Lyman Child.

Lincoln was so plain and dressed so plain; she wanted him to dress up. When I first knew him he liked to wear the linsey woolsey. He was a homely man but drew people to him. He was a great friend to the poor, made more over a ragged boy or girl than any other kind.

"Everyone around Springfield sorrowed when Lincoln was killed. I remember as though it was yesterday his body lying in state there in the state house. And I remember the day my husband and I went to pay our respects that there was the biggest night on the streets of Springfield that I had ever seen. Colored people had flocked there from all sides, they were present in such numbers they more than filled the sidewalks. There really didn't seem to be any room for any of the white people that wanted to go to the state house. It was shouted that the colored people should go out into the road, not take all the sidewalks. A big fight followed, there was much noise and confusion. But the police finally stopped it. Lincoln lay in state a day and night, an army of people had opportunity to pass along as he lay there with the guards about him."

OF THE SEVENTH GENERATION

Great War President Might Well, if He Had Wished, Boast of His American Ancestors.

So unique is the individuality of Abraham Lincoln that one is naturally surprised to learn that the name has ever been borne by anybody else. As a matter of fact, on the evidence of a recently published genealogical chart of the former president's family, there have been four others. The fifth and famous Abraham was of the seventh generation of Lincolns in the United States. The chart shows that Samuel, son of Edward Lincoln of Hingham, England, was apprenticed to a weaver and mariner, and that he came to America in 1637, living first in Salem and afterward in Hingham, Mass. Thus by about 17 years, if the genealogy is correct, Abraham Lincoln missed being a Mayflower descendant.

New Lincoln Story.

A Washingtonian who was a mere boy at the breaking out of the Civil war recently related a small incident that is as typical of Lincoln as any of the thousands of others that have gone before. This man had enlisted in the first regiment enrolled in the capital city. The recruits had been drawn up on Pennsylvania avenue and reviewed by the president and his secretary of war, Mr. Seward. These two dignitaries passed down the line of troops and as they passed the man who now relates the incident, President Lincoln remarked:

"Seward, I suppose there are a hundred men in these ranks who could hold your job or mine."

Latitude and Longitude.

An old countrywoman called upon Lincoln to present him with a pair of stockings a yard long—she had knit them herself. He was touched and held them up to be admired by all the officials present. "I thank you, ma'am," he said, with tears in his eyes, "I shall take them with me to Washington, where I am sure they have nothing like them."

George Boutwell, afterward secretary of the treasury, set everybody into a gale of laughter by declaring: "Well, this lady certainly made a very correct estimate of your latitude and longitude."

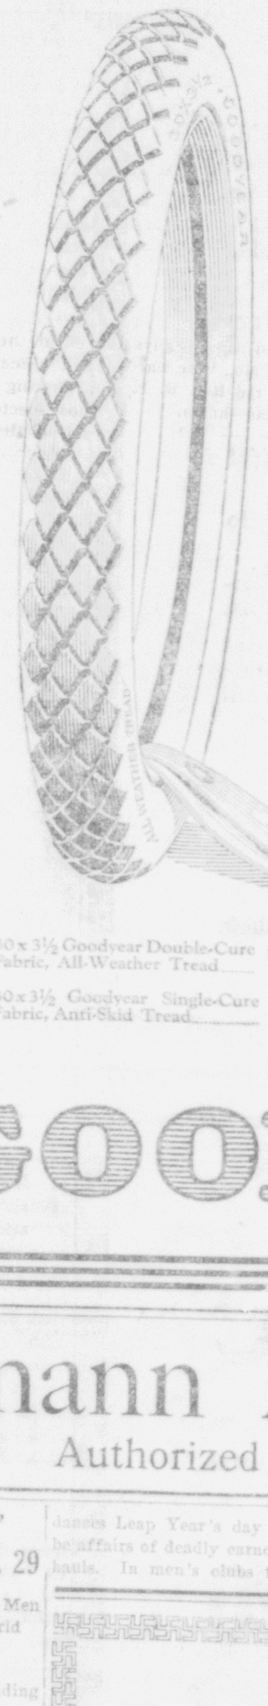
Lincoln's Library.

The Bible is literary, political, historical and educational. Abraham Lincoln had only three books in his early manhood: the Bible, Aesop's Fables and Weems' History of the United States. The Bible was the great book that gave the martyred president his simple, tender, beautiful literary style, both for speaking and writing. The fables gave him his story illustrations, while the history made him familiar with the great characters and events of the nation. Leave the Bible out of his life and he might have been a moral wreck; at least there would have been no Abraham Lincoln as the world sees him today.—Exchange.

Right Views on Good and Evil.

Good citizenship demands and requires what is right should not only be made known, but be made prevalent; that what is evil should not only be detected, but destroyed.—Abraham Lincoln.

Big Value in Tires for Small Cars



Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for small cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that, if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car requiring the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

30 x 3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $20.00

30 x 3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $17.65

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce castings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water-proof bag $3.90

ENGLISH WOMEN TO "LEAP" FOR BACHELORS ON FEB. 29

Causes More Alarm to Eligible Men Than Threatened End of the World on December 17.

London.—Englishmen are dreading February 29, 1920.

Since last leap year wily woman has acquired the vote, she has won her desire to become a justice of the peace, she sits in parliament, and——

Worst of all, there is a shortage of husbands and women are bee-lining towards eligibles.

In view of these facts, men attach a morbid interest to the sinister February 29. It is causing them many more tremors than did the threatened end of the world December 17. That, they say, was only probable misfortune. February 29 holds inevitable misfortune.

Many London hostesses are giving dances Leap Year's day and they will be affairs of deadly earnest with record hauls. In men's clubs there is much discussion, with bated breath, as how best to avoid calamity on this day. Some talk of embarking to join the brontosaurus hunting expedition. Others are going to stay in bed behind locked doors.

BACHELOR INTRODUCES BILL TO GOVERN WOMEN'S CLOTHES

Columbus, Ohio.—The height of skirts from the ground, depth of V-necks and thickness of lace or tulle vestments through which can be distinguished the color of the skin were provisions incorporated in a bill seeking to regulate women's wearing apparel, introduced in the legislature here five years ago by former state legislator, Louis H. Capelle of Cincinnati, now prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county.

Capelle was a bachelor member of the lower legislature branch.

Although it failed to become a law, word now reaches America from Paris that Capelle's bill is held responsible for the "backless" gowns, a style now prevailing in France.

Capelle explans that he introduced his bill for the purpose of attracting public attention to some of the foibles of womankind.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

DIRECT TWO NEW BUILDINGS AT STATE UNIVERSITY

Big Attendance at Farmers Week may be Responsible for New Home Economics Building.

Columbia, Mo.—As a result of the most successful Farmers' Week ever held at the University of Missouri—January 19-23, 1920—suggestions have been made for two new buildings greatly needed to extend the facilities of the University, which at present are sorely taxed. Governor Frederick D. Gardner, speaking at the banquet which closed the week, a banquet at which 900 farmers and farmers' friends sat down together, announced that he hoped to be responsible for the erection of a home economics building at the University before the close of 1920. The banqueters showed their approval by rising to their feet and cheering for several minutes.

In addition, Dean F. B. Mumford of the College of Agriculture, observing the need for more room at the meetings of the week, is quoted as believing that "the College of Agriculture will have to have a new $500,000 building within the next few years if the visitors to Farmers' Week are to be adequately handled."

The present difficulty, according to Dean Mumford, is the lack of seating capacity for the lectures. The University Auditorium and the Agricultural Auditorium were the only places large enough to seat the visitors who attended lectures. In one classroom during Farmers' Week 212 were seated, 100 stood along the walls, and 100 were unable to get in at all.

The proposed new building should have at least two large auditoriums for the visitors, with seating capacities of several hundred each, according to those who observed the congestion at some of the meetings.

Governor Gardner, in addition to announcing plans for the home economics building, promised to present a silver loving cup for the women students in domestic science at the University.

Early Potatoes a Money Crop.

Many growers in Missouri are finding that early Irish potatoes are a profitable crop to grow for the local market or to ship. Growers should remember that a large part of the success of the potato crop depends on getting an early start, so that the crop is well along toward maturity before hot weather, according to J. T. Ross, Jr., of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. The Missouri early potato crop should be ready to go to market by July 1st, thus following up the shipments of early or "new" potatoes from the South, and preceding the crop in more northern sections.

The latter part of March is the ideal planting time. Early Ohio and Irish Cobbler have been found the best varieties in our experiment station tests, while most strains of the Bliss Triumph have proved unsatisfactory. Commercial fertilizers have also proved to be an important means of increasing potato yields. A complete fertilizer will probably produce the greatest increase in yields, but acid phosphate alone produces very marked results. Plenty of seed should be used. It pays to cut the seed pieces so that the individual piece weighs at lease one ounce or more. Small whole tubers, taken from otherwise healthy Northern grown seed, or from fall home-grown seed, have been foun dto produce a good crop if planted early.

Peep through the smallest hole in he fowl yard fence and some old hen will see you, proving that the vision of fowls is much more acute than of man.

Missouri, the Feed State.

Missouri is a great feed milling state, exporting or shipping great quantities to other states. The commercial or mixed feed trade of Missouri is enormous, and the manufacturing plants operating here consume home farm crops used in these feeds.

There are 120 mills or mixers registered as feeding within the state. In all 426 mills register as selling such feeds in Missouri, producing 1,786 kinds or brands of feeds. Missouri has the uniform or model feed law requiring the labeling of every bag or sack showing the feeding value.

The mean annual temperature of the earth is about 59 degrees Fahrenheit; with the highest temperatures in Northern Africa and the lowest in the Antarctic.

Three bushels of barley is enough to seed an acre of ground, but it takes only one-half of a bushel of timothy seed to plant an acre.
